Learning Objectives

Explain why trauma-informed programs operate with the universal expectation that trauma has occurred

Explain each of SAMHSA's principles and why it is important

Give positive examples of the implementation of each principle

Name at least 3 changes that would make your own work setting more trauma-informed

NASMHPD

SAMHSA's Principles

- Six principles that guide a trauma-informed change process
- Developed by national experts, including trauma survivors
- Goal: Establish common language/framework
- Values-based
- A way of being

Principle: Cultural, Historical, and Gender Issues

The organization actively moves past cultural stereotypes and biases, offers gender-responsive services, leverages the healing value of traditional cultural connections, and recognizes and addresses historical trauma.

The Living Well Center for Social & Economic Vibrancy

The Living Well Center for Social and Economic vibrancy a physical and social canopy for community engagement and development.

We operate as an organic think tank for social entrepreneurs, universities, the philanthropic community, health and wellness entities, the non-profit and business community.

We engage our eco-system of community change makers, artist, healers and resource allocators as collaborators.

Our canopy celebrates indigenous approaches for community wellness, economic and social vibrancy.

Our goal is to help transform ideas for social impact into action while providing access to safe, affordable, accessible space, thought and social capital.

Objective

Participants will explore the context of how race, historical context and the culture norms of Black and Brown communities impacts the trust and under reporting from victims of violent crimes and how employing healing technologies can build trust and community healing. Participants will learn organizational culture dynamics that impact victims engaging and completing services provided.

Begin Within

Organizations are living breathing organisms that are made up of cellular eco systems. Each system operates within a construct of beliefs and behaviors that respond to the operating culture of the organization. Each organizational member brings their values and beliefs as a layer and player within the groups' social systems. These overt and covert systems interact and produce an environment that will behave the underlying values.

Organizational Culture Dynamics

Culture of your organization is described as:

- History of the organization or service model
- Lived Experience (how have people been treated?)
- Aesthetic Standards (code of dress?)
- Communication Styles (multi-generational, technological, conflict, etc)
- Power dynamics
- Intersection of Environment and Culture
- Funding

1965 Moynihan Report

Moynihan argued that the rise in black single-mother families was caused not by a lack of jobs, but by a destructive vein in ghetto culture, which could be traced to slavery times and continued discrimination in the American South under Jim Crow.

Historical Trauma

Traumatic experiences shared by communities can result in cumulative emotional and psychological wounds that are carried across generations. This concept is called historical trauma. As a result, many people in these same communities experience higher rates of mental and physical illness, substance abuse, and erosion in families and community structures.³ The persistent cycle of trauma destroys family and communities and threatens the vibrancy of entire cultures. Historical trauma is not just about what happened in the past. It's about what's still happening.

Why We Don't Report

“Common reasons for individuals not reporting crime include fear of not being believed, insecurity, and fear of getting into trouble.”

These reasons are most common for not reporting rape.

It is commonly assumed that most of the rape cases go unreported; some estimates go up to or above 90%.

NASMHPD

Why We Don't Report

Many Black women are under pressure to not report Black men and subject them to the legal system.

According to a national study, 91% of Black women are sexually assaulted by Black men 75% of those attacks are by someone known to the victim, such as a family member or friend.

Black women and girls may face both internal and external pressure not to report their attackers.

It may even be seen as a betrayal to expose a member of their community to the police, as there is often a strong imperative to protect Black men after centuries of oppression and discrimination.

NASMHPD

Why We Don't Report

Arrests in courthouses and a general fear of deportation are impacting the ability of the justice system to operate fairly and protect public safety.”

NASMHPD

Institutional Racism

“Federal Housing Authority, under the New Deal, turned down Black individuals for mortgages, especially if they wished to live in white neighborhoods. As a result, many Black people were homeless or forced to scramble for housing that was either temporary or gravely filthy. In fact, a number of African-Americans died due to unsanitary living conditions.”

NASMHPD

Racial Trauma

- Many ethnic and racial groups experience higher rates of posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD) as compared to White Americans. One explanation for this is the experience of racism, which can itself be traumatic.
- When traumatization is due to experiences of racism it is sometimes called racial trauma. Racial trauma can result from major experiences of racism such as workplace discrimination or hate crimes, or it can be the result of an accumulation of many small occurrences, such as everyday discrimination and microaggressions.

©National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors, Inc. All rights reserved.

Micro Aggressions

- Microaggressions are defined as “brief and commonplace daily verbal, behavioral, and environmental indignities, whether intentional or unintentional, that communicate hostile, derogatory, or negative slights and insults to marginalized individuals and groups.” The “micro” in microaggression refers to person-to-person interactions, while “macro” refers to systemic racism. Systemic racism includes social structure and institutions.

Intersections

Suffering in Silence

“The gender paradox on mental health suggest that many more boys and men are suffering in relative silence from depression.”

©National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors, Inc. All rights reserved.

High Risk Environments

- High Risk Environments are historically constructed by the federal/local governments and lenders who used the practice or red lining to withhold Black & Brown social uplift via housing and homeownership.
- These practices have created environments that are under resourced as a result there are in safe and affordable housing, poor education systems, access to health care and jobs.

©National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors, Inc. All rights reserved.

Exposure to Violence

“Boys and men from racial/ethnic and sexual minority populations are at increased risk for violence victimization and perpetration due in part to greater exposure to high risk environments and less protection and support when violence is experienced.”

Mental Health Services

- Who uses mental health services?
- Are people who use your services mandated to attend?
- Does your staff/clinicians represent the racial/ethnic demographics served?
- How are you employing indigenous practices as resources for healing?
- Does the organization employ mindfulness practices and provide spaces for quiet meditation?

Principle: Peer Support

Peer support and mutual self-help are key vehicles for establishing safety and hope, building trust, enhancing collaboration, serving as models of recovery and healing, and maximizing a sense of empowerment.

PRN is a survivor led space for healing, wellness and exploration of identities beyond victim, “mentally ill,” “addict,” “the homeless,” and “felon”

Three-fold aims:

Elevate the voices of people directly impacted to advance wellness, recovery and resilience through peer support

Utilize the earned wisdom to re-develop behavioral health practices and services to be trauma aware, informed and competent

Ignite social justice based reform on policies and practices that create inequity, marginalization and disenfranchisement of people with labels of mental illness in the name of treatment and “justice”

PVNC is a statewide survivor led movement of over 600 people mobilizing to provide leadership for policy and system transformation based on their Expertise by Experience

Coalitions:

A Person Fell in a Hole

A person experiencing emotional distress fell into a hole and couldn't get out.
 A businessman went by.

The person in the hole called out for help.

The businessman threw him some money and told him,
 "Get yourself a ladder."

But the person could not find a ladder
 in this hole he was in.

NASMHPD

64

A doctor walked by. The person said, "Help, I can't get out." The doctor gave him drugs and said, "Take this, it will relieve the pain,"

The person in the hole said thanks, but when the pills ran out, he was still stuck down there, all alone.

NASMHPD

65

A renowned psychiatrist rode by and heard the person's cries for help.

He stooped and said, "How did you get there? Were you born there? Were you put there by your parents? Tell me about yourself, it will alleviate your sense of loneliness."

So the person talked with him for fifty minutes, then the psychiatrist had to leave, but he said he'd be back next week. The person thanked him, but was still in his hole.

NASMHPD

66

A priest came by. Again, the person in the hole called out for help. The priest gave him a Bible and said "Lets pray together." He got down on his knees and prayed, then left.

The person was very grateful; he read the Bible, but he was still stuck in that hole.

NASMHPD

67

A Peer Mentor happened to be passing by. The person cried out, "Hey, help me, I'm stuck in this hole."

Right away, the Peer Mentor jumped in the hole with him.

The person in the hole said, "What are you doing? Now we're both stuck here."

But the Peer Mentor said, "It's okay, I've been here before, and I know how to get out."
