Supporting systems that help people and communities thrive since 1955 WICHE's Behavioral Health Program (BHP) has two main goals: To help Western states best serve the behavioral health care needs of their residents To develop, prepare, and continuously improve the behavioral health care workforce The WICHE BHP pursues these goals through diverse means in three priority areas: Systems improvement to contract directly with states to optimize their delivery of behavioral health care Workforce development to help states assess, plan for, and meet their behavioral health workforce needs with a focus on adoption of evidence-based practices Research, data, and evaluation to advance behavioral health knowledge and promote sound public policy The BHP staff and consultants include psychologists, social workers, policy experts, researchers, and more – all who have earned strong reputations as thought leaders in their areas of expertise, and who are as passionate in their purpose as they are diverse in their skill sets. Like other WICHE programs, the BHP expands the capabilities of its partners by promoting innovation, cooperation, resource-sharing, and sound public policy. The BHP imagines a future in which no one, however emotionally or geographically isolated, is limited by behavioral health challenges.

The National Center for Adoption Competent Mental Health Services aims to improve mental health outcomes for children and families impacted by child welfare by providing technical assistance that bridges the gap between child welfare and mental health systems. The National Center prioritizes the need for specialized mental health services for children and families who have experienced the child welfare system. We have seen a positive impact when mental health professionals have the skills, knowledge, and strategies to meet the complex needs of our most vulnerable youth. Leveraging this expertise, we can now build bridges between child welfare and mental health systems and enhance the workforce's capacity nationally. We hope to address the mental health crisis plaguing our nation and ensure accessible and evidenced-informed mental health services that meets the needs of all children and families.

We believe that the way we work can add meaning and value to the world. That ideas inspire positive change. That coloring outside the lines can illuminate fresh perspectives. And that small details yield important realizations. Above all, we believe that collaboration is the best way forward. We specialize in architecture, engineering, environmental, and construction services. While we are most well-known for adding beauty and structure to communities through high-performance buildings and smart infrastructure, we provide much more than that. We create an unshakable foundation for progress because our multidisciplinary teams also include scientists, economists, builders, analysts, and artists. Our employees, working in more than 200 locations around the world, push open the doors to what's possible each and every day.
